RIOTING AT SIOE STRIKE IN PORTSMOUTH THURSDAY.

Sampson A. Varner, leather man at the Selby plant knocked down and cut about the face.

Albert Reinhardt, shoe cutter, knock ed down.

Non-union man slugged near Excelsior factory.

Carl Seheid was beaten up.

Another man was attacked, but he drew a knife and threatened to carve up anyone who touched him. He was let alone.

Otis Mitchell had to run for his life.

The above briefly sums up the rioting in Portsmouth. The riot is not yet. It is indeed sad to see a prosperous city like Portsmouth rent and torn up by labor troubles.

"LAST DAYS OF POMPEII"

Greatest Moving Picture Spectacle Ever
Shown—At the Gem Today.

"The Last Days of Pompeii," now being shown at the Gem Theater, this afternoon and tonight, is probably the most remarkably beautiful and costly moving picture production ever brought to Maysville.

The portrayal before the human eye of the scenes before during and after the destruction of the city of Pompeii in the year 79, are truly sublime in magnitude and beauty of production.
The scenario is truly local and Roman and the majesty and beauty of the actors are remarkable.

This gigantic spectacle is shown in three acts of two parts each and is presented by George Kleine.

The admission is only 20 cents.

NEWS and GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON

Capital Calling System Is Revamped by Women

WASHINGTON.—Women in official society circles met here the other day and discussed the national capital's complex calling system with a view to evolving a simpler and more satisfactory method of exchange of the formal call.

The meeting was held at the Congressional club in response to a call by Mrs. Duncan U. Fletcher, its president.

Former Ambassador Henry White, who served on diplomatic missions to London, Paris, Rome and other European capitals, told of social obligations as he had observed them abroad.

Among those in attendance were Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice-president; Mrs. Bryan, wife of the secretary of state; Mrs. White, wife of the chief justice of the Supreme court, wives of cabinet officers and others.

Mrs. Fletcher voiced the sentiment of those present by declaring the necessity for a simpler calling system was imperative. Everybody, she said, wants to return every call that is made upon them, but there is a limit of hours in the day and days in the week.

"On her first afternoon at home," said Mrs. Fletcher, "Mrs. Marshall had a thousand calls and they have averaged between 300 and 500 each Wednesday since. Her sincere effort to return every call has been the comment and admiration of all Washington society, but how can anybody return in person several thousand calls in one season? Mrs. Marshall's experience is in greater or less degree duplicated by every official hostess in Washington."

The question of simplifying formal calling in Washington has been growing more acute during the last ten years, but this meeting was the first attempt at simplification.

American Youth Scramble for Places in Navy

IT takes a "Jimmy" these days to break into the United States navy as a plain, ordinary seaman; a stick of dynamite is necessary to get in as an apprentice or yeoman. The navy department and its recruiting stations have "waiting lists" containing hundreds of names of young, husky youths "hankering" to go to sea.

The full, active membership of the navy is limited by law to 51,500 men, and there are more than 100,000 men now on the pay rolls. For the first time since the Civil war the full quota of men allowed by law has been enlisted.

The bars as to fitness have not been let down, and no men with physical or mental defects have been enlisted, but there has been good advertising. The tales of the cruises and the details of the chances for obtaining an education, sent out in pamphlet form, have swelled the ranks so that the bars had to be put up.

The greatest number of monthly enlistments, except in war time, was made in the last six months since Secretary Daniels began his revolutionary reforms in the navy.

Perhaps the chief cause for the great influx of fine, hardy young men into the naval service in the last few months was the recent Mediterranean cruise of the great Atlantic fleet.

This cruise was a regular pleasure trip for the young seamen, and it was intended that it should be such by the navy department. Long stops were made at all the principal cities on the Mediterranean, where shore leave was given. At the different seaports the American sailors were entertained in lavish style by naval and civic organizations, and in every way shown a general good time.

Tales of cruises contained in letters sent back to friends from foreign ports also fire the imagination of young friends "back home." For instance, the recruits at the Chicago training station were recently sent overland to Fremont, Wash. They were allowed a stop-over at Yellowstone park, and other interesting places. Soon after arriving at Bremerton they were assigned to the cruiser New Orleans, which sailed for Mexican waters. On its trip south the cruiser stopped at San Francisco, where shore leave was given to the youngsters. Now it is reported that as soon as the Mexican trouble is settled the New Orleans will sail for the Orient.

Discuss the Increasing Scarcity of Army Horses

THERE has been recently a discussion going on among the army and navy men on the increasing scarcity of army horses. The army quartermasters, who have to do with the purchasing of horses for military establishments, say that there is really an alarming scarcity of good animals. Of course, it is well known that the war department is more or less hampered by the fact that congress has not appropriated sufficient money to enable the quartermaster's department to acquire horses in sufficient number to supply all the mounted commands. Consequently there is a shortage in horses caused by the distribution of troops on the border and elsewhere and by the increase of war strength of troops serving abroad. There are not enough horses now to supply the commands at peace strength.

If there were to come an emergency calling for a large number of horses the war department would have great difficulty in getting them. It is said that one reason for the scarcity of horses is the falling off of the product of those who are raising horses. It is unofficially declared that the increased use of automobiles has had its influence on the rearing of horses, despite the assertions to the contrary.

The motor trucks also seriously affect the market for draft animals, but that has to do mostly with the mule, so far as the army is concerned. The mule will always be a necessity, despite the improvement which has been made in the motor trucks. The animal must be used with the troops in the field. The trucks will be useful for supplying the columns in the rear.

Believes There Is a Good Deal in Some Names

MR. LADISLAV LAZARO, representative from the Seventh Louisiana district and successor to Arsene Pujo, head of the now famous "money trust" investigating committee, believes there is a good deal in a name when it comes to running for congress. Dr. Lazaro is fairly well satisfied that he has run for office under the patronymic of his grandfather he would have been defeated before his friends and neighbors could have mastered the name of their candidate.

The new congressman's real name is Lazaro Bladonovitch, although he has gone into the records of congress as Mr. Lazaro. His grandfather, a Russian, went to Louisiana with the unpronounceable name, but in succeeding years the French descendants who became his friends and associates gradually eliminated it from their vocabulary and called him Lazaro.

Two generations have now grown up in Louisiana under the name, although cousins and relatives in other parts of the United States still use the paternal name of Bladonovitch.

Memories of Toulon. Toulon, now festing the British tars, has reason to remember a previous visit of our fleet in 1793, remarks the London Chronicle. The city was held by the royalists, who admitted a band of sailors from the English and Spanish fleets to assist in their defense against the republican army. Toulon fell after a six-month siege, and there followed a terrible scene of plunder and massacre. It was during this siege that a young Corsican captain of artillery gave first proof of the military genius that was to hold Europe in terror for 20 years to come.

Catacombs Used by Druids. Eleven miles southeast of London, in Kent, a few years ago were discovered the catacombs of the ancient Druids, which are now much visited by sightseers and are lighted, for a part at least, by electric lights. Over fifty miles of chambers, cut in the chalk cliffs, have already been explored. The Druids lived in these catacombs when attacked by their northern enemies, and here they buried many of their dead. The stone on which the human sacrifices were made is still to be seen, and also the well, from which water is drawn to this day.

MEDAL ASKED FOR LARGEST FAMILY IN FRANCE

Here is the largest family in France, consisting of 22 children. The mother of the line men, women and youngsters, Mme. Malet, has asked President Poincare for a Legion of Honor medal. Her oldest child is twenty-four and the youngest, on the mother's lap, is fourteen months old. The husband and father is seated at Mme. Malet's left.

WOULD HELP BOYS

Agricultural Scholarship Instead of Washington Trips.

U. S. Department of Agriculture Recommends Former as the More Valuable Prize for Youthful Members of the Farming Clubs.

Washington, D. C.—The department of agriculture recommends that in place of a trip to Washington, the young prize-winners of the Corn, Canning and Poultry and other agricultural clubs be given a year's course in practical training at some agricultural college. In case the young champion's academic training would not enable him to enter the agricultural college of his state, a more elementary course in a school where agriculture is taught or a course in an agricultural high school is recommended.

The department considers that such courses have considerably more lasting value for prize-winners and for the agriculture of their sections than flying trips to the capital. The state and local organizations which have been paying for these trips have been sincerely interested in developing a true appreciation of farming as a business among the boy and girl farmers. Some of these have already considered this question and have decided on the agricultural course as the more desirable prize.

One of the first persons to raise the question as to whether the practical training or the more spectacular trip was preferable, was Willie P. Brown, an Arkansas Corn club prize winner. Given his choice of all the prizes offered by the state, including the trip to Washington, he selected a scholarship giving him a year's tuition in an agricultural school. This gave impetus to the idea in Arkansas, and now the biggest annual prize offered the Corn club boys is a scholarship given by the Bankers' association. The same association gives a similar scholarship to the girl champion of the canning clubs.

Other suggestions regarding prizes have been made from time to time by those who have been most interested in these clubs and understand the needs of the boy and girl farmers. Some of the suggestions are offered herewith for the consideration of others who might care to profit by them.

While a year's course with all expenses paid is the suggestion of the department for the biggest prize for state winners, less extensive courses might be offered to county winners. It has been suggested that such counties as care to give prizes, give one or more short courses in the state agricultural and mechanical colleges to the fortunate county champions. These courses are usually only two weeks long and are held in winter or in summer. The training given is of the most practical sort, and the amount of time spent is no gauge of the amount of benefit to be obtained. These short courses have already been given as prizes by certain counties, and have proved most valuable to the young people.

Large cash prizes are not to be encouraged according to those who have worked with the young contestants. Better suggestions are as follows: A pair of registered pigs, a pair of full blooded chickens, a fine coat, a registered calf, an up-to-date corn planter, a two-horse wagon, a gold watch, books on agriculture, a double-barreled shotgun, a first-class bicycle, a ton of good fertilizer, a $5 bat, a fireless cooker (for girl winners).

In general it is better to offer many small prizes than a few large ones. If twenty boys try for a prize and only one is fortunate, some of the nineteen unsuccessful contestants will probably be too discouraged to try again. But if five of the boys are rewarded for their efforts, more merit will have received recognition and the remaining fifteen will see more possible opportunities of success the following year.

Some boards of trade and chambers of commerce have also recognized the efforts of the clubs, by giving banquets for the young people and entertaining them with street car and automobile rides. On other occasions clubs have been honored by an invitation to march in parades, where they have attracted deserved attention.

From Memphis, Tenn., comes an interesting story which is a sample of what has been done in other states for young prize winners. In the three states (Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi), which are annually represented at the Memphis tri-state fair, it was decided to send certain boy prize winners to the fair as a reward for their excellence.

A trip to a fair is a more or less spectacular event as is the Washington trip, but it gives the young farmers certain concrete agricultural experience, which they do not receive from excursions to the sights of Washington. At the fair in question the young men were housed on the fair grounds in tents, two to four in each tent, all in charge of men employed by the state or government to look after their interests.

The young men had a regular program which kept them busy most of the week of their stay. One day an expert took the young men to view the improved farm implements on display. The boys were shown the machinery, and its uses were explained. Another day a seed expert showed the boys the exhibits of seeds and gave them practical advice on seed selection. The boys were taken in the same manner to view the beef cattle and other live stock.

ADMIRAL DEWEY IS ATTACKED

German Naval Writer Calls Incident at Manila as "Astounding Allegations."

Berlin.—Count Reventlow, Germany's foremost naval writer, attacked Admiral Dewey in Deutsche Tages Zeitung in connection with the chapter dealing with the German-American incident at Manila in Admiral Dewey's book of reminiscences. Count Reventlow describes Admiral Dewey's relation of the rencontre between himself and Admiral Von Diederichs as "astounding allegations," and challenges the accuracy of the assertion that the Americans fired a shot across the bow of the German frigate Cormoran as a reminder to the German admiral to respect the blockade which the American squadron had established.

MAN'S GLASS EYE BLOWS UP

Artificial Optic Explodes When in Its Socket and Tears Owner's Face.

Austin, Tex.—Arthur F. Nichols was the victim of the most peculiar accident on record. His left eye exploded. It was a glass eye and the explosion occurred while he was sitting at the supper table.

Silvers of glass were imbedded in his face and he was taken to an oculist, who removed several pieces. Nichols' other eye also is glass, he being totally blind. No cause has been assigned for the explosion. Nichols keeps a cigar stand in the state capitol.

FLYING WILL BE COMMON

Rudyard Kipling Makes Prediction in Lecture Before Royal Geological Society.

London.—Rudyard Kipling, lecturing before the Royal Geological society on the subject of "Travel," referred to the past modes of travel as obsolete and said he was looking forward to sky travel. "The spirit of man is alone unaltered and unappealable. The time is not far off when a traveler will know and care just as little whether he is over land or sea as today he knows or cares whether a steamship is over 40 fathoms or over Tuscarora deep.

"Then we shall hear the lost ports of New York and Bombay howling like Tarahib and Tyre. Incidentally, too, all our aerial pictures of travel will be changed."

Council Forbids the Tango. Pineville, Ky.—The town council of Pineville has passed an ordinance forbidding the tango and kindred dances. About fifty persons live here.

Would Prohibit Cigarette Sale. Ottawa.—A bill prohibiting the manufacture, sale and importation of cigarettes will be introduced in the house of commons.

New Method of Identification. London.—A machine which identifies a person by his manner of walking has been invented by Prof. H. H. Holshaw.

HAPPENINGS in the BIG CITIES

Just a Little Incident of Real Life in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO.—Little incidents of real life, as this one was, provide entertainment for the most blasé of crowds. And the mere fact that a crowd of theatergoers bound to their homes in the Richmond district were of this sort did not in the least keep them from chuckling to themselves quite as animatedly as the shoe store clerk who was on the same car.

Near the downtown terminal the car had been boarded by a winsome little lass of the "interesting" age, whose real blonde hair she had allowed to become mussed while working over some dry-as-dust matters in the office where she was employed. She wasn't used to being out that late, this could be seen at a glance, for before she had been in the car five minutes her head sunk to one side, her eyes closed and she slipped off into dreamland.

Beside her was a stalwart young man who gazed with some consternation and embarrassment at the slowly approaching head of the girl next to him. Just then the car gave a lurch, and, without awakening, the girl allowed her head to tilt farther and farther until at length it was resting snugly on the young man's shoulder.

Now this young man didn't belong to the girl, and the girl didn't belong to the young man, and by the youth's actions this fact was as plain as day. He squirmed and looked uncomfortable, perspired and mopped his brow, and half rose when the name of his street was called, only to lean back again with a groan.

The passengers chuckled, smiled and then giggled outright, while the young man dared dagglie glances of annihilation about him. At length the martyr could stand it no longer. He had already gone three blocks past his stopping place, and human endurance has its limitations. With a gentle shove he set upright the cause of all his troubles, and rushed down the aisle toward the car door, while two blonde bairs trailing out behind his black suit changed the giggles into a roar of laughter that verily shook the car.

Alligator in Gas Heater; Porter Breaks Record

ATLANTA, GA.—And the puzzling thing about it is, how did it manage to get there? It's an alligator, an honest-to-goodness alligator, a baby thing with tail and head and jaws like a lizard, and they found it in a barber shop.

The shop is operated by L. M. Brady. Tom Echols, who shines shoes while he isn't sweeping out, went back to light the instantaneous heater for a customer who was going to take a bath, and as the gas flared up something leaped from the tank, sprawled upon the floor and commenced kicking about.

Echols, who is black and superstitious as well as easily frightened, darted for the street. He made the distance in time that amounted to just a little bit less than nothing, screaming and striking terror to the souls of a half dozen customers and fully that many barbers.

Upon investigation Brady discovered an alligator crawling forlornly beneath the gas tank. It measured about six inches in length, and was the size of an overgrown north Georgia lizard. It was the "hellbender" size, to use a scientific term, and can be carried in the hand or pocket with safety.

How the thing managed to get into the Marietta street barber shop is a scientific mystery. Some say the sun absorbed it with an amount of water from the flow of the Nile, away over there in Egypt, carried it in the clouds until it became a burden, then dropped it into a north Georgia stream, from whence it flowed into larger streams which carried it into the Howell mill reservoir of the city, from which it was sucked into the water mains of Atlanta, later being deposited into a feed pipe of the barber shop, which carried it into the instantaneous heater tank.

That, however, is only one of the theories. There are many others, all of which are conflicting. One way or another, it got there, and still happens to be there, having rested uncomfortably in the currency compartment of the Brady cash register.

Picking Up a Living on the Streets of Gotham

NEW YORK.—He was a charter member of the Amalgamated Associates Who Get a Living Without Work. He never ascended to "second story" robbery or descended to pocket picking. Both were too risky. Quick as a trout after a fly, slippery as an eel just out of Hudson river mud, and with sight as alert as that of a crab after curries on the river bottom, he skims the tidal flow of New York's shopping eddies and gathers in what he may.

That gathering is good when all New York is shopping—shopping strenuously—but tethered helplessly with its legs that to stoop over and pick up a dropped parcel is a physical proposition that must be passed up.

Handbags will pop open, particularly if properly pressed by an adept. That helps when business has been bad with the accumulator of unconsidered trifles.

"I literally pick up a living, and an honest one," he explained, when asked why he did not return a bundle to its owner, instead of trying to get it into his pocket unobserved. "Findings is keepings. I was taught when I was a kid, but I always advertise them first—if they're worth it. Good rewards you get sometimes. If I make a good find around the big hotels and it's advertised, especially when it says, 'No questions asked,' and it's a watch or jewel that's listed in all the pawnshops, I return it."

It turned out that the accumulator had been an exercise boy in a racing stable, steering suckers against handbooks, caper at auction rooms, and finder and feeder for street fakers at intervals.

Fat Man's Sigh Bursts Button, Blinding Diner

PITTSBURGH.—Sighing with contentment after he had finished an excellent dinner, J. E. Jones, a wealthy real estate man, weighing 250 pounds, forced a button from his waistcoat with such force that it split in two. One of the pieces struck in the eye his friend, Christopher Smith, with whom he was dining, probably destroying the sight. The other piece caught Mr. Smith on the cheek and opened up a deep wound, which required three stitches to close.

Mr. Jones now admits that it is not always wise to express with a sigh one's satisfaction over a fine meal, especially if one be of wide girth.

Mr. Jones and Mr. Smith had just finished dining in a Diamond street restaurant when the accident happened. After the repast was finished they had settled themselves back for a smoke, when Mr. Jones heaved the momentous sigh. There was a snap and before Mr. Jones realized what had happened there was a wound under his companion's left eye, while the eye itself was tightly closed in pain.

Medical attention disclosed the fact that Mr. Smith will probably lose the sight of his left eye.

Mr. Jones is a member of the Academy of Science and Art. He is prominent in business circles.

California's Magnesite.

Magnesite, a mineral which is over 52 per cent. carbon dioxide, the gas which is used for charging soda water, ginger ale and similar beverages, is found in greater quantities in California than in any section of the country. California magnesite is probably exceeded by few, if any, of the foreign deposits and is superior to much that is mined abroad.

About the Limit in Hunting.

A Dublin gentleman was spending his vacation with some friends in the west of Ireland. As he was being driven to his destination he noticed a bog that promised good shooting, and asked his driver if there were any snipe in it. "Snipe, is it, sir? Did ye say snipe? Shure, if ye went into that bog without a gun they'd ate ye!"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

CROWN PRINCE STUDIES WAR PLANS

The exile of Dantzig, Crown Prince Frederick William, is back in Berlin, after two years at the head of his Death's Head battalions. He comes to Berlin to study war plans and administration under the guidance of the able soldiers of the general staff. He could not have come at a better time if he really desires to work and learn. Preparations for increasing the army under the terms of last year's armament bill are well under way, and the staff is loaded with work of a highly practical executive nature.

The crown prince will probably not stay at Berlin long. He will be instructed by past masters in strategy, the mobilization of troops, in all that can be taught from maps at a desk. Then he will be sent to some other regiment to take up again the practical work of soldiering. By inclination as well as training, young Frederick William appears to be a thorough soldier. He may find himself some day in a position where he will have to use his knowledge of the war game. There are many reasons to be apprehensive of this, although the horizon is now fairly clear. War clouds roll up quickly in Europe. In the formal phrase of democracy, Germany's relations with all other powers are "correct." That means that there is no immediate cause for apprehension that some neighboring country will make a sudden and unexpected descent on the fatherland's frontier.

But more cannot be said, for the neighboring European nations do not like Germany. Former Chancellor von Bulow, in reminiscences published only a short time ago, declared flatly that France has never forgiven Germany for the defeat of 1870-71 and the annexation of Alsace-Lorraine and that she never will.

RECEIVER OF THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Mr. Walker W. Vick of New Jersey, general receiver of the Dominican customs for Uncle Sam, has just rendered the sixth annual report of the receivership. A summary of the report shows that his business at the Dominican capital showed some trepidation when President Wilson brought about a change of administration of custom affairs in Santo Domingo. They feared the new broom might sweep too clean.

As the new receivership administration gradually unfolded its purpose, however, there was a natural subsidence of concern within business circles, and now the conclusion is in all realms of Dominican financial and commercial circles, that the right kind of sweeping has a salutary effect on the financial, as it does on the domestic household, and that cobwebs of debatable precedents are not always conducive to forceful achievement. When what is known as the "American-Dominican convention of 1907" was created, the United States accepted the responsibility of receiving all the customs duties; to pay a definite proportion of the same each month to the Republic, and to apply all else in payment of interest on a $20,000,000 bonded debt and into a sinking fund for the discharge of the principal.

The receiver general is required to make monthly reports of every penny collected, the cost of administration, and the disposition of every dollar received. At the end of each fiscal year these monthly reports are consolidated and published in the form of an annual report, and the whole field of Dominican financial and commercial growth is followed by the receivership powers, and exposed to the fruiting sunlight of statistical accuracy and publicity.

During the six years of this Dominican receivership great progress has been made toward the repayment of the principal of the $20,000,000 loan, the customs receipts climbing from about $2,000,000 a year to an annual total customs receipts for the calendar year 1913 of over $4,000,000, or, to be exact, $4,290,000.

AWARDED RED CROSS GOLD MEDAL

A woman with white hair and with the spirit of perennial youthfulness and enthusiasm shining from her face has been awarded the Red Cross gold medal of merit by the central board of that organization. The woman thus honored is Miss Jane A. Dolano. President Wilson made the award of the medal. In presenting Miss Dolano to the president, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, the active head of the American Red Cross society, said of her:

"It is due to Miss Dolano's devoted and efficient labors that a splendid corps of over 4,000 of the best trained nurses in the country have been enrolled in the Red Cross for active service in time of war or disaster. The people of the United States may well be grateful for the unremunerated and efficient work of this devoted woman."

The practicability of the remarkable organization effected by Miss Dolano, whose official title is chairman of the national committee on Red Cross nursing service, has many times been tested. Last spring, for instance, during the Ohio flood, Miss Dolano and her coworkers were able to mobilize within a few hours time an efficient corps of trained nurses to assist in the relief work, and the Red Cross can at all times secure through its 110 local committees on nursing service the number of nurses required in disaster or war.

The entire corps of Red Cross nurses represents a high professional standard, and has been made a nursing reserve for the army and navy.

OFFERED POST AT PRINCETON

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, who is in this country lecturing in the cause of world peace, has been asked to join the faculty of Princeton university, and it is understood that he has agreed to accept. His election, it is said, will be sanctioned by the trustees at their meeting in April.

The position which Mr. Noyes is to fill, it is said, is a visiting professorship, with lectures on modern English literature. It will begin about the middle of next February and extend through the second term of the university, and, it is understood, will continue in this way for several years, from February to June.

Mr. Noyes is thirty-three years old, and has been writing poetry for more than 20 years. At the age of fourteen, he wrote his first epic, a production in rhymed verse of several thousand lines, describing allegorically the voyage through life as on a ship. This poem was not published. Five years later "The Symbolist" was printed in the weekly supplement of the London Times. At that time he was in Exeter college, Oxford, achieving a reputation far more through his prowess as an athlete, and especially on the class crew, than as a poet.

DOLORES' PIMENTO COAT

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD.

"I will not be paired off with any girl who wears a pimento coat," said Chad firmly, even aggressively. "I'm willing to go the limit on this thing. I'll put up cash for the 'ents, and I'll pull an oar, and do all the camp tricks I know, but if you think I'm going to have that pimento coat handed to me to carry around on my arm all the afternoon, you've got another guess coming, Shorty. There he limits even to our fraternal bonds, hey?"

"She's a peach of a girl, honest, Chaddie. You only saw her for a minute down at the boat landing—" "It was enough. She shone effulgent on that boat landing. All I could see was a splash of rare pimento yellow, the glorious deep red yellow of Castilian banners. And you want me to attach myself to that comet. Nay, child, nay. Ask of old Uncle Peter what you will, but no pimento coats, lad."

"Well, shako her, if you like. I'll take her, coat and all, and be glad to, I tell you that. Only it didn't seem a square deal to her. She's a fine girl, and deserves our best specimen of manly beauty." He dodged the clothes brush swiftly and peered around the hall door for a last fling. "I'll tell her you objected to the coat, Chaddie."

Chad growled an inarticulate answer. Yet somehow even after his roommate had gone, he could not apply himself to books. Out of doors the first day of June fairly whooped at him to come and join the fun of living. Great fleecy clouds sailed lazily up from the southwest beyond the edge of woodland that rimmed the campus. Beyond the woodland were the tall sand dunes that sloped to the blue waters of old Michigan. Along the shore three miles up, was to be the picnic, and they were to row there in boats.

All unconscious of the comment she had stirred up, Dolores hesitated between wearing her coat or a white sweater.

"You'll need the coat coming back when it gets cool toward evening," Vida advised, and when it came to general pointers on the etiquette of wearing apparel and behavior, the girls kowtowed to Vida in her "soph" year.

Dolores added her head. She flashed one of her quick, amused smiles at Vida. It was all part of her college education, she felt, and Vida was a delightful guide and mentor.

The next day when Chad met the girl in the pimento cloak, his worst enemy could not have wished for a more complete subjugation. But it was Shorty, cheery, popular little Shorty, who walked her away from him.

All the afternoon she kept away from him. Then suddenly Fate veered his way. Out of the southeast there came up a pelting thunderstorm. They had walked far along the bluffs, and Shorty had led the retreat towards a distant house, when Chad found himself next the pimento coat.

Drenched it was now, but he welcomed it and its wearer, and he turned toward what looked like a shelter in the trees.

"Why, it is a pilot house," cried Dolores. "That is queer."

"Not at all," plunged Chad boldly. "They're cast up by wrecks all along the Michigan coast line. Then the people turn them into summer houses—and—chicken coops, you know—anything. I think it's cozy myself."

"We should go on with the rest," "They'll never miss us, and I've got to speak to you. Why did you make believe you did not know me?"

"Do I know you, Mr. Grayson?" Dolores' dark eyes looked at him so seriously and anxiously that Chad lost his head.

"Do you—oh, Lord! Didn't I make love to you for five days coming from Cherbourg a year ago? Aren't you Miss Merrifield?"

"One of them. There are three of us, and we all look very, very much alike to strangers."

"I'm not a stranger. I've been writing you letters ever since, and pouring out my heart to you, and you've answered them, haven't you?" "Maybe my sister Refna, or my sister Signa."

"It was you. Don't you suppose a man has any intuitive sense? Didn't I know the instant I looked at you, I'd know you anywhere, and love you under any circumstances. You wouldn't have answered my letters if you hadn't cared. Dolores, would you?"

"I have—remembered you," said Dolores, guardedly. "We must go at once to the others. I think. The clouds are breaking."

"You bet, they're breaking," exclaimed Chad with force and fervor. "And after commencement I'm going to throw up my camping trip, and go down to San Antonio."

Saving Space.

Two little South side laddies who visited in the country recently were sent to bed in a small room that contained a small cot, on which both were expected to sleep.

The larger of the boys got into bed with his underclothes on.

"Here," protested his companion, "ain't you going to put on your night shirt?"

"If I put on my nightshirt," the other replied, "there will not be room for both of us in this little bed."

Husbands and Cigars.

"You never see her with her husband."

"She let him go out too often when they were first married."

"Husbands are very like cigars—you mustn't let them go out."

PROPER PRUNING OF GRAPE VINES ESSENTIAL TO YIELD AND QUALITY

Ordinarily at Least Two-thirds of the Wood May be Cut Away With Safety—Training According to a Sun-light and Air System is Necessary

(J. H. Carmody, Assistant Horticulturist, Kentucky Experiment Station.)

The grape is one of the oldest and most widely grown of our cultivated fruits. Because of the bardness of the fruit and the readiness with which it adapts itself to different localities, it is to be found in all parts of the world. Nearly every farm, and city home as well, has a few vines of some favorite variety planted about the premises. While these vines produce fruit every year, nevertheless they are a source of disappointment to the owner because the fruit is not as good as he would like to have it.

An examination of such a vine often tells the reason for the failure. Grapes are vigorous growers and the ordinary vine is left too full of wood. In the forest where the grape grows wild over the trees one can not help but notice the distance which the fruit is located from the main trunk. The neglected vine presents a condition very similar to the wild one in the forest. The vine in the forest aims to produce fruit in order to perpetuate itself and the neglected vine to a lesser degree is doing likewise.

Pruning Requisite To Yield.

When left unpruned only a small amount of fruit is borne at the extremities of the branches. To produce quantity of fruit of any kind it is necessary that the plant be pruned and kept in bounds. Otherwise the amount of wood will become so great that all of the plant food will be used in keeping it alive. When a vine is so thick the air and sunlight are excluded and black rot and other troublesome fungous diseases are also very common.

Many growers neglect to prune their vines because they do not understand the proper way to go about this work. The terms pruning and training are often confusing. Grapes are pruned in order to reduce the amount of wood, to limit the production of fruit, and to keep the vine in control so that it may be easily managed. The object in training grapes is to arrange the vine according to some definite system so that the air and sunlight may reach the fruit readily.

Twenty Buds Enough.

Before starting out to prune a grape vine one should remember that the fruit is borne on shoots of the present season which develop from buds borne on last season's canes. The important point in grape pruning is to remove a large amount of wood so as to limit the number of buds. Ordinarily at least two-thirds of a vine may be safely cut away. Usually not more than twenty buds should be left after the operation of pruning is completed. In removing the canes try and remove the weaker ones and leave the stronger ones.

Grapes may be pruned any time after the leaves drop until the buds start to swell. If pruning is neglected too long and is then done after buds start to swell, the vine will bleed. While

PLANNING THE GARDEN

PLEASANT OCCUPATION FOR SOME OF THE EVENINGS REMAINING TO WINTER.

Study Should be Made of Companion and Succession Crops and a Definite Plan Be Followed in Putting Out Vegetables and Flowers When Spring Calls.

At this time of the year we begin to get seed catalogs with pretty pictures and describing new vegetables that we have never tried to raise. These and the consciousness of the approach of springtime, together with the interest and delight that all members of the family can find in the garden, encourage us to spend some of the few remaining winter evenings planning the garden.

In making these plans it is interesting and profitable to study among other things (1) Variety of vegetables and flowers which means more enjoyment from the table standpoint; (2) Profit, both as regards saving of grocery bills and possible sales; (3) The quantity that can be produced on a given area, especially in towns and villages where space is limited; (4)

SILO DISPELS WORRY.

The farmer who has a silo is letting the other man worry about next winter's feed.

Beet greens are extremely edible, at eight weeks of age, even if the roots are only budding.

Dig a hill or two of plantain for forcing in the cellar this winter.

Grit and shell for poultry should be fed in open hoppers.

Keep the hens comfortable. They don't mind a little cold if the quarters are dry.

HOLDING GOOD BROOD SOWS.

When selecting the brood sows for next season, spare those which have shown themselves to be good mothers.

Do not be tempted by price or any other consideration to part with them as long as they will breed well, unless they show indications of impaired usefulness.

One good brood sow should be worth two young ones whose usefulness has not been proved. Attention to this matter would greatly increase the profits from growing swine.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 29

JESUS THE GREAT TEACHER.

(Review.)

READING LESSON—Matt. 7:1-29. GOLDEN TEXT—"His bath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."—Micah 6:8.

There is no chronological order to the lessons for the past quarter, though they have all been selected from the period of the Perea ministry of our Lord. The thought of the Golden Text, rather than the reading lesson, will serve to give us a connected review.

The lessons have chiefly concerned Jesus as the great Teacher, thus we notice the inclusive note of the first clause of the Golden Text, "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good." As an exposition of that note we have presented God's plan of action, outward, "to do justly, and to love mercy," and inwardly "to walk humbly with thy God." With this thought in mind let us divide lessons of the quarter into two sections: (1) The first seven lessons which have to do with man's relation to the kingdom in its outward manifestation, and (2) the remaining five that have to do with "walking humbly with thy God," e. g., the inward aspect of the kingdom.

As Children.

1. The first section, in order to keep this two-fold thought before us, we must observe carefully the several golden texts. In the first lesson we have set before us the manner wherein we are to enter into this new kingdom. We must enter as children and the Golden Text, "Likewise, ye younger, be subject unto the Lord," for God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. "Illustrates the humility of children and the necessity of our right relationship to them. The second lesson deals with the possibility of co-operation with him in service, as when the 70 went before his face. Great privileges, however, when abused, bring condemnation and degradation. "It is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you." The third lesson—"The Good Samaritan"—is another expression of the outward walk of life, that of loving mercy. True love never asks who it may, but rather who it can, serve. It always manifests itself in sacrifice and in service—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The story of service actually rendered to our Lord in the days of his flesh is the subject of the fourth lesson. All other interests and ties must be secondary to our allegiance and obedience to him—"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these, my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me."

The fifth lesson concerns prayer. The parable of the unfriendly neighbor and the effect of prayer to bring about just relations is revealed in the Golden Text which is the heart of that lesson. "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." The sixth lesson still continues to treat this outward aspect and reveals to us the fact that great as Satan is, our Lord Jesus has far greater power. The difference between darkness and light and the unjust conclusions of men is a difference of viewpoint, hence the Golden Text, "Look, therefore, whether the light that is in thee be not darkness." Christ's hatred of shame is the seventh lesson. God looks not upon the outward appearance, but upon the heart. Jesus sternly denounces men who lack justice and mercy in dealing with their fellow men. "Do not deceive: God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Must Walk Humbly.

II. The second section. We now come to a group of lessons that seem to emphasize the second part of God's requirements, as expressed in the Golden Text for today, viz., "and to walk humbly with thy God." This is the inward, personal, relation with God, as, against our outward, right relations with men. These remaining lessons deal with the abiding principles of discipleship which Jesus gave to his followers. The eighth lesson reveals the principle of a true confession of Christ to be that of the faith which makes fear impossible. We are to fear God alone. In the ninth lesson we see that the true fulfillment of life is that of having the heart set upon the true treasure, which is spiritual, rather than upon the false treasure which is material, for, "Where your treasure is, there will be your heart also." In lesson ten we have set before us the principle of faithful service which is that of watchfulness for the returning King, and which expresses itself in perpetual service in his interest and on behalf of his household. "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching." The principle of the religion of Christ is that of compassion (lesson 11), and the true sanction of the Sabbath is fulfilled in such service as makes the Sabbath possible to those who are in need. It is, therefore, lawful to do good on the Sabbath.

Lesson 12 deals with the vital issue of this second section, viz., that it is of far more importance that we be in the kingdom than any other issue. We must put forth strenuous efforts that we may enter the narrow door. The kingdom of God is doing the will of God, rather than calling him Lord! "Not everyone that saith unto me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Thus as we hastily look over these lessons from these two viewpoints, we are led to conclude with the first declaration of the Golden Text for the day.

Needed for the Meal.

Little Henry had a pain in his stomach, and his baby brother was much interested in the means mother employed to mitigate the said pain. Mother produced a hot-water bag and adjusted it to the spot that hurt. In a little while luncheon was announced, and Henry, feeling better, sat up and put the bag aside. He had hardly reached the door, however, before a small voice called after him:

"Oh, Tommy, you forgot your tummy."

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin on the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Hadn't Forgotten Hubby.

"I have always been suspicious of good things," said a well-known New York lawyer, who has a reputation for a large philosophy. I remember when I was a young man I had an opportunity to get in on the 'ground floor' of what looked to me like a load of easy money.

"I consulted one of the old-time conservative men of Wall street. He smiled and said: 'Listen to this story and then decide:—

"A wife arriving home in high spirits tells her husband she has purchased a new bonnet. 'And, sweet heart,' she said, kissing him, 'I got something for you, too.'—

"'Good!' exclaimed the happy husband. 'What is it?'

"'The bill,' she said."

Artists 25,000 Years Ago.

"Man began to be an artist subsequent to the last ice age, which period is roughly estimated at from 25,000 to 50,000 years ago," said Prof. George Grant MacCurdy at the University Museum lecture the other afternoon. "At least that is the time the fundamentals first appear. Therefore, man was an artist before he was a maker of hieroglyphics. He produced objects of beauty before he tamed the wild beasts."

"The cave artist was practically without an artistic background, but climatic, faunal and other environmental played no important part in the origin of troglodyte art. The models were game animals, and ran largely to profiles, for the cave artist had not learned perspective, but he understood motion. He made single figures, but was long in acquiring composition."

NOT A MIRACLE Just Plain Cause and Effect.

There are some quite remarkable things happening every day, which seem almost miraculous.

Some persons would not believe that a man could suffer from coffee drinking so severely as to cause spells of unconsciousness. And to find relief in changing from coffee to Postum is well worth recording.

"I used to be a great coffee drinker, so much so that it was killing me by inches. My heart became so weak I would fall and be unconscious for an hour at a time."

"My friends, and even the doctor, told me it was drinking coffee that caused the trouble. I would not believe it, and still drank coffee until I could not leave my room."

"Then my doctor, who drinks Postum himself, persuaded me to stop coffee and try Postum. After much hesitation I concluded to try it. That was eight months ago. Since then I have had but few of those spells, none for more than four months."

"I feel better, sleep better and am better every way. I now drink nothing but Postum and touch no coffee, and as I am seventy years of age all my friends think the improvement quite remarkable."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

TWO BIGGA STIFFS.

The dreadnaught Oklahoma has been launched in the same year that Al Jennings has launched his campaign for Governor.—Frankfort State Journal.

THE TAILOR WILL CHARGE JUST THE SAME.

A St. Louis merchant tailor has taken the pains to analyze the Tariff as it affects his particular business, and to show how great a reduction there would be in the cost of a suit of clothes under the Democratic contention that a lessening of duties means a corresponding decrease in price of necessities of life. He chooses as an example an ordinary suit of woolen cloth for which he would charge a customer $35. The cloth would cost $3.50 per yard, and three and a third yards would be required, making the outlay for the material $11.63. Deducting the duty would reduce this to $9.30, a saving of $2.33. On the trimmings, if imported, there would be a further saving of 67 cents, making the aggregate reduction in the cost of the suit $3. And this, adds the tailor, would be no so small that it would hardly be worth noting—in other words, he would charge just about the same for the suit as he would have done had there been no Tariff revision. There is little doubt that this will be the course generally pursued, and there is slight probability of tailors' bills being smaller because duties have been cut. But there is another and very important side to the matter. It is a fact that good suits, of excellent American cloth, can be made and sold for far less than the "average" price named by the St. Louis tailor for his imported material. That was the case under the old Tariff, notwithstanding all the fuss over "high cost of living" as a result of Protection. The amount of "bunco" in the Democratic Tariff will be appreciated when the "ultimate consumer" tries to find out how he is benefited.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

DEVELOPMENT OF SEASIDE RESORTS.

For many years the nations of continental Europe have given consideration to the development of seaside resorts. Americans rarely stop to realize the extent to which the possibilities of these numerous localities along an extended and varied coastline have been recognized and developed abroad with a combination of business tact and hygienic insight. In this country the exploitation of the seashore has been left largely to chance. The number of seaside resorts in Prussia has grown from 31 in 1880 to 156 at the present time; in Germany as a whole, with its comparatively small coast-line, there are today 184 localities in which the possibilities of the seaside are publicly developed in some degree. The good that is accomplished in the way of promoting health, enjoyment and recovery from disease by the modern development of the seaside as a climatic and institutional agency is undoubted. One wonders, says The Journal of the American Medical Association, whether there is not a far greater opportunity for the development of some of our own natural coast resources for the public welfare than has been assumed heretofore. The aim should always be to reach every group of our population, so that the less favorably situated as well as the more opulent might reap at low cost the advantages which a favorable climatic location has vouchsafed. Even if the seashore hobby were worshipped like a fetish, it could do little else than good; for whatever encourages the outdoor life of our people mind a hygienic environment is likely to be wholesome.

THE MAN WHO DOES THINGS.

It is not the critic who counts—not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, who strives valiantly; who errs and comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error and short coming, but who does actually strive to do the deeds, who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while doing his duty, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat. So brothers, attend your lodge meetings and take an active part in its workings and thus be classed with the brother who does things.—Rochester, N. Y., Democrat.

CHILDREN AND THE "MOVIES."

More than 2,300 school children of the grammar grades in the public schools of Providence, R. I., recently were asked the question: "What kind of motion pictures do you like best and why?" The question was asked in school and the answers were taken before the children had opportunity to confer with anyone outside. The classification shows that 907 of the pupils preferred education pictures. Western or comedy scenes appealed strongest to 735; comedy to 364; drama to 139. Sixty-three pupils frankly confessed that they favored crime pictures and 156 pupils declared they did not attend picture shows. The 2,364 pupils questioned were in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades. In the higher grades the vote ran largely for education films while in the lower grades the preference mainly was for cowboy pictures. The latter class of pictures, however, had many devotees in the higher grades.

Preferences for educational films were explained by such answers as these: "Because when we study our history we have a clear picture of what we are talking about." "Because you can learn quicker from moving pictures than from books." "If schools had moving pictures about their lessons the children would pay a great deal more attention than to books." "Because it helps me and I can pass through my grade."

Most of the boys were antagonistic to love-making scenes, but many of the girls asserted that they liked such pictures best. One boy gave as his choice the pictures about "Harry K. Thaw, who got put in prison for murder." Another boy in indicating his preference for comedy wrote: "If a person goes to a show he goes to laugh, and not to cry, for he has so many troubles at his home."

On the whole the showing was rather favorable to the better classes of pictures though some of the replies indicated that the influence of the "movies" was not altogether good.—Courier Journal.

SEVERAL DIFFERENT OLOGIES.

On a starlit night an Irishman was rowing two Englishmen across a river.
 "Say, Pat," said one of the men, "do you know anything about astrology?"
 "I do not," replied Pat.
 "Then the best part of your life has been lost," said the Englishman.
 The other passenger inquired:
 "Pat, do you know anything about physiology?"
 "I do not," was Pat's response.
 "Then that's the best part of your life lost," he answered.
 Just then a squall struck the boat and all three were thrown into the water.
 "Say, fellows, do yez know anything about swimming?"
 "No," gasped both the Englishmen as they floundered in the water.
 "Thin, begorra, both of yez lives is lost," said Pat as he struck out for the shore.

(Georgeown (Ohio) News-Democrat.)

Squire O'Hare last week received a letter from Deputy Game Warden Kurtz stating all confiscated seines captured by the game wardens in southern Ohio were being assembled at Cincinnati for the purpose of being taken charge of by the State last season. The letter stated that there would be more than a car load of these, which was the largest collection ever made in that time by these minous of the law. The letter stated that a more rigid watch was to be kept this season than ever before.

SWEETHEART FURNISHED BAIL

For McAdams Then Took Him In Her Buggy and Drove Him Home.

Batavia, Ohio.—Last week Vida Mahan drove to this place and gave bond in the sum of $300 for the release of Bud McAdams, one of the Williamsburg boys held in the county jail for the robbery of McNutt's store. Vida and Bud are sweethearts and to furnish this bail she placed a mortgage on her home. Vida is three times a widow, although now only about thirty-five years of age. McAdams is just reaching his majority, and as soon as he was released the two entered her conveyance and started for their home apparently satisfied that the sacrifice had been worth the effort.

MISS ALICE LLOYD

Not Only Answers Senator James
But Hands Him Some New Woman Suffrage Logic Herself

Woman Suffrage Not a Dogmatic
Fad, But an Issue That Can Not Be Sidestepped

In explaining his vote against a Federal Amendment enfranchising women Senator James did well. He gave to the advocates of the cause something definite and tangible to meet.

As reported in the newspapers Senator James' arguments were: First, against the proposed Federal Amendment as an intrusion of States Rights; second, against woman suffrage in Kentucky as a matter of expediency; and, third, against woman suffrage per se.

As to the question of States Rights it seems to many advocates of woman suffrage that the point was well taken. For a private in the ranks to criticize the plan of campaign agreed upon by those in command, appears ill-judged since he can not know what were the arguments pro and con that led to forming the plan. But to our private in the suffrage ranks it does seem that it would have been good policy to have waited until at least three of the States most interested in preserving the doctrine of States Rights had enfranchised their women before making the effort for enfranchisement by Federal Amendment.

Thirty-six States must ratify an amendment to the Federal Constitution before it becomes a law and the necessary thirty-six States can not be gotten without three of the following States: Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida. Then too there is just as serious a race problem on the Pacific Coast as there is in the Southern States and one of the Senators from an already enfranchised State, while he favors woman suffrage per se, voted against the amendment to the Federal Constitution, lest its passage should weaken the doctrine of States Rights.

There can be no doubt that there is an increasing tendency toward a strong centralized government and it now looks as if State lines would grow more and more dim except for purposes of administration; but it is not the object of the woman suffrage movement to hasten the day when the doctrine of States Rights shall be relegated to the pages of history. Now while the doctrine has yet a purpose to serve it does not seem good tactics for the suffrage leaders to collide with it, better steer by a course that would not come into such conflict.

Within less than ten years, probably in half the time, every State in the Union will enfranchise its women by amendment to its own Constitution. If the fight should be won in the Federal Congress, it would still have to be carried to the individual States to be ratified. If only one State short of thirty-six failed to ratify the amendment, the fight in thirty-nine States would be lost; whereas, if this effort is made for enfranchisement State by State, in every State where the vote is affirmative the work is done once for all. Moreover, in only a few years the political pressure will be so great as to make it impossible for any State to refuse to enfranchise its women. Already New York and Pennsylvania are beginning to be restless when they realize that by reason of enfranchising her woman Illinois has a greater voting population than either of them. To the mind of this private the hope of an early and sweeping victory through the ratification of a Federal Amendment, is not so great as the danger of a long delay through the failure of one State short of thirty-six to ratify such an amendment. Votes would be cast against ratifying a Federal Amendment because it forced on a minority of States unwelcome conditions (that would be cast for a State amendment enfranchising women).

This question of the method of securing the ballot whether by appeal to the States one by one or by Federal Amendment is as old as the organized woman suffrage movement. On May 15, 1899, the National Women Suffrage Association was organized with the object of securing a Sixteenth Amendment to the National Constitution which would enfranchise women. Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton was made president and Miss Susan B. Anthony put on the Executive Committee. Because of division of opinion as to the expediency of this method, in November of the same year the American Woman Suffrage Association was formed, with Henry Ward Beecher, president, and Lucy Stone, chairman of the Executive Committee. It worked to obtain the suffrage through amendments to State Constitutions. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe was a leading member of the latter association. Both organizations held National conventions every year until 1900 when the two bodies united under the name National American Woman Suffrage Association and since then both methods of work have been followed.

Although a majority of the delegates at the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in 1912 were suffragists, after a long and continued struggle the convention declined to put itself on record as endorsing enfranchisement by Federal Amendment because it involved the race problem and the question of States Rights. The question is not one of ultimate end but of method.

It is interesting however to observe that three Southern Senators voted for the amendment. Senator Lea of Tennessee, Senator Sheppard of Texas, and Senator Ransdell of Louisiana.

But it was not Senator James' purpose to advise suffragists as to how they might succeed in securing citizenship but to defeat that end entirely.

Having discussed the expediency of a Federal Amendment from a suffragist standpoint, by the courtesy of this paper, I shall later take up its arguments against enfranchising Kentucky women as a matter of expediency and his objection to woman suffrage per se. Meantime if there is in the community a man or a woman who holds opinions opposed to the foregoing expressed, as a matter of interest to those concerned in an enormous question, and every intelligent citizen is concerned on one side or the other, it would be well if he or she would present his or her views through the public prints.

SERIOUS ERROR IN MAYSVILLE

Mayaville Citizens Will Do Well to Profit by the Following.

Many fatal cases of kidney disease have reached an incurable stage because the patient did not understand the symptoms. Even today in Mayaville there are many residents making the same serious error. They attribute their mysterious aches and pains to overwork, or worry, perhaps, when all the time their rheumatic pains, back-ache and bladder irregularities are most probably due to weak and ailing kidneys. If you are ill, if your kidneys are out of order, profit by this Mayaville resident's experience.

Lang Stevens, Mayaville, Ky., says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had backache, attended with pain, which extended into my kidneys. The kidney action was irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my family, so I gave them a trial. They made me entirely better."

BRITISH EMPIRE RENT BY ULSTER UPRISING.

London, England, March 26.—That the government is still facing a situation of extreme difficulty is proved by the fact that Premier Asquith was not ready tonight to make his promised statement in Parliament.

The air is full of extravagant rumors, among the most credible being the report that Colonel Seely is, after all, to quit the War Office by an exchange of portfolios with Lewis Harcourt, Secretary for the Colonies.

Field Marshal French Quits.

The only new facts in the situation today were to be found in the resignation of Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Sir John Spencer Ewart, Adjutant General, from the army council. The rumor persists that other members have resigned but this cannot be confirmed.

Negotiations and conferences between Buckingham Palace, the War Office and Downing Street were carried on throughout the day and it was known that the strongest efforts were being made to induce Field Marshal French and General Ewart to reconsider their action.

Farmers

Have you ever tried our way of borrowing money to pay for a farm? You, of course, know that most farms are sold for one-third cash and the balance of the payment is represented by lion notes due in one and two years. You also know that there are times when it is impossible to pay these notes when they become due.

Our specialty is lending money on good farms for LONG PERIODS. Wouldn't you rather have five years to pay the balance than two years? Any one expecting to buy farms this March will do well to come in and consult us about getting the money.

We have been giving satisfactory service for 24 years.

ELECTRIC SIGNS!

The distinguishing air of quality which a first-class Electric Sign gives to a store is the element which gives a sign its greatest value as an advertising medium and investment. The impression it makes is good. It blazes forth to the public that there is business enterprise, merchandise and methods up-to-date. It affects the entire atmosphere of the business district. The stranger says, "It is a live town," and publishes it abroad. It is the Sign of the Times.
